Good Morning Everyone,

I hope your first day of moving forward with new on-line instruction was manageable. Speaking to some of our teachers, more kids were checking in and present (virtually) than on a normal school day (in some cases)! Congratulations!

Yesterday, it was announced by our governor that school buildings will be closed for longer than anticipated due to COVID, so now we are probably going to proceed with this type of instruction for a few more weeks.

Over the last few weeks, I've tried to give you some mental health tips to help you adjust to this new situation we find ourselves to be in. Talking to some parents, it seems that many of you are adjusting well, keeping schedules, staying connected and doing ok.

Some of you have reached out with questions, or through discussion boards to say "hi" to your teachers - we all miss seeing you! Stay the course - you are doing great!

An announcement from Mrs. Rumpf about yearbook:

If you are still interested in buying a yearbook, the Balfour.com online store for ordering yearbooks will close this Friday.

Talk to you tomorrow!
